ERNIE'S JOKE-FEST

A milkman who had just finished his early morning deliveries returned to his truck and found Ernie busily poking around among the bottles.

"What are you doing there?" he asked Ernie.

"The Science teacher sent us out to find something," answered Ernie.

"What?"

"The Milky Way," said Ernie.

Mrs. Jones: My little four year old boy just took in four pages of Shakespeare.

Mrs. Smith: But how can a small boy like that understand Shakespeare?

Mrs. Jones: He just ate it up.

* * *

The history teacher had just asked the class to name the first two people in history when Orville jumped up wildly waving his hand.

"All right, Orville, suppose you tell us," said the teacher.

"Adam and Evil," grinned Orville.

* * *

Orville: What'll you have, Sir?

Customer: I'll have some raw oysters, not too large nor too small. Make sure they're not too salty or too fat. They must be cold and I want them quickly.

Orville: Yes sir. With or without pearls?

Mr. MacTavish's wife was ailing so he took her to the doctor. After an examination, the doctor took MacTavish aside and said that his wife was in need of salt air.

"I can easily take care of that," nodded MacTavish.

So he took his wife home and fanned her with a salt herring.

* * *

Kewpie and Orville were sitting on a park bench when Kewpie turned to Orville and said: "Orville, will you love me when I'm old?" "Love you?" Orville shouted. "I'll worship the ground under your little feet. I'll adore the very air you breathe. I shall—" and then he stopped short and looked closely at Kewpie.

"Say, you're not going to look like your mother, are you?"

Two farmers came to the city for the first time and visited the city men where one of them spotted a robot. "What's that?" he asked his friend. His friend stared at it for a long time and then turned with a grin and said, "Why that's a sport model jackan."

* * *

Customer: I'd like a dozen eggs to be used for hard boiling.

Orville: I've just the kind you want, Sir. Plymouth Rock.

Colonel Compose checked into a new hotel and the clerk asked him if he wanted a room with running water. The Colonel bristled and shook his fist under the nose of the surprised clerk. "I'll have you know, Suh, that ah am no treat!"

A parrot whose job it was to heckle his magician boss, throughout their performance, was going through his routine aboard a ship where they were giving a show. Everytime the magician made something disappear, the parrot would dash to the hidden spot and produce the article. The magician tried everything in his bag of tricks to confuse the parrot, but without success. The parrot continued to find the missing objects. In the middle of the performance, the ship struck a reef and quickly sank. The parrot and magician made their way to a life boat and for three hours, the parrot scanned the wide, empty ocean. In exasperation, he finally turned to the magician and screeched "All right, Boss—I give up. Where did you hide the boat?"

* * *

The same parrot was also trained to sing "Yankee Doodle" if you pulled a string tied to its right leg, and "Home On the Range" if you pulled a string tied to its left leg. One day, two little boys watching the show asked the magician what would happen if he pulled both strings at the same time.

"Okay, Wise Guy," squawked the bird, "I'd fall on my face."

* * *

In the middle of her singing lesson, Lily Belle turned to her teacher who accompanied her on the piano and asked, "Can you all tell me if ah have any possibilities as singer, Miss Crank?"

The teacher looked up in disgust and said, "Lily Belle, I've played on the white keys for you, and I've played on the black keys—but you sing in the cracks!"

* * *

A moron went up to the country post office and asked for his mail.

"What's your name?" asked the postmaster.

"Eh ky. It's on the envelope, Silly!" answered the moron.

* * *

A traveling salesman bought some limburger cheese to eat in his room and still had some left when he was ready to leave the next morning. He didn't want to pack the remains in his bag so he buried it in a potted plant on the window sill. A few days later, the hotel sent him a telegram which read, "We give up. Where did you put it?"

* * *

As the pretty orange was placed in the juicer, the juicer said: "What a tight squeeze this is going to be."

* * *

Bill: He plays so beautifully that his violin cries.

Bang: Quit your kidding. He just eats onions.

* * *

An eskimo was making love to his girl friend. As they sat on an iceberg, the eskimo sighed "Ah dearest—I'd go through snow and sleet and ice for you for you."

"Stop the slush," she answered.
